Invites you to an evening with

Caitlin Crommett

Speaking on

*“Millennials and Politics:
What You Need to Know”*

Caitlin Crommett is a recent graduate of the University of Notre Dame, and a speaker on generations in the workplace with a specific focus on Millennials. Her interest in generations began at age 15, when she started a foundation called DreamCatchers, which serves to fulfill the final Dreams of hospice patients, those with 6 months or less to live. The chapters are run by high school and college- age students, who in turn fulfill Dreams of typically-elderly hospice patients, a connection between generations not made very often in today's world. This sparked her passion for facilitating greater connection and communication between all generations, in the workplace and in the world.

In this session, she will explore what makes Millennials tick when it comes to getting involved in politics, on any level. We will discuss why Millennials get involved, how they like to engage in the political process, and what motivates their actions- regardless of party.
